HOW DAUGHERTY LOOKS TO REPUBLICAN PRESS.

Among the prominent republican and independent papers that have suggested or demanded Attorney General Daugherty's resignation are the following:

New York Tribune (Rep.): To date no sufficient reason is given why Mr. Daugherty should not write his resignation or why the president should not demand it if not voluntarily tendered.

New York World (Ind.): Whatever obligation the president may consider himself to be under to Mr. Daugherty, he is under an immensely higher obligation to the American people to see that the administration of justice shall deserve public respect and confidence. Mr. Daugherty's fitness to hold his high office has been challenged in congress, and a strong case has been made out against him. He has evaded answering his accusers. Is the administration so blind as not to see not only the political consequences of shielding the attorney general against investigation, but the immeasurable wrong it commits against the public in retaining at the head of the department of justice a man whose honor and probity are questioned?

Baltimore Sun (Ind.): The disclosures regarding Attorney General Daugherty are not mere headline material for an edition or two. They may well give the administration real anxiety and concern. When a conservative republican newspaper like The New York Tribune calls upon the attorney general to resign, when the demand is echoed by The New York Herald and other important republican journals, it is high time for the president to appraise the damaging effect that the revelations have had upon the country and to ascertain whether the administration of the department of justice is in the hands of persons likely to command public confidence.

Philadelphia North American (Ind.): If Attorney General Daugherty retains a shred of regard for the president and the administration, he will resign without delay an office which has been put under a cloud by his incumbency. But the responsibility goes higher. President Harding owes it to himself, to his administration, and to the country to force the severance of an association which is no longer defensible.

New York Tribune (Rep.): Unless Attorney General Daugherty has a better defense of his relations to the unsavory Morse pardon than thus far has come from him or his friends he should relieve President Harding of embarrassment by a prompt resignation. . . . Mr. Daugherty should never have been named as attorney general.

New York Globe (Rep.): The case against Mr. Daugherty is strong enough without additional incrimination. He knew that he was being hired, not to furnish legal advice, but to use his influence. On that understanding he took, or agreed to take, a large fee. He can clear himself only by proving that the Felder letter and his own signed letter and contract which Senator Caraway introduced into the record on Saturday are forgeries.

The misstep and the publicity and scandal which have accompanied it are enough to retire Mr. Daugherty permanently into private life.

Philadelphia Public Ledger (Rep.): The plight in which Mr. Daugherty now finds himself is one that threatens and affects the integrity of the federal administration. . . . When the integrity, veracity and the general qualifications of the attorney general of the United States threaten to become a "campaign issue," the administration of federal justice is embarrassed, impeded and clouded. . . . If the whole business is not cleared up now, it will go into the coming political campaign, and neither Mr. Daugherty nor his political and official associates will be the gainer. In the present estate and situation the attorney general is a public liability and embarrassment.

Another peculiarity of the average man is his inability to see what the other fellow has to be conceited about.

The shorter and uglier word for wounded vanity is "grouch."

The voice of the people is seldom heard in a campaign where money talks.

Democracy in America isn't uncompromising enough to keep the ladies coldly aloof from a titled visitor.

There's something about a soft collar that reminds us of the kind of pants sculptors use to drape deceased statesmen.

Chats With Your Gas Man

An employee of this company, who, upon hearing any complaint or criticism of the service, promptly reports the complaint, giving the name and address of the customer, does three valuable things:

He provides relief for the customer, making it possible, through knowledge of local conditions, to remove the cause of the complaint.

He gives this company the opportunity to investigate and remedy the conditions complained of.

He has the satisfaction of knowing that he has helped the customer and this company.

We want our customers to know that we are constantly impressing these facts upon our employees, to the end that complaints may receive prompt and courteous attention.

A satisfied customer is the most valuable asset this company can hope to have. Any employee who fails to recognize this fundamental fact does not rightly represent this company and its policies.

"Thunderclap," Fox Picture, a Thriller

"Thunderclap," the big William Fox picture at the Grand tomorrow, brings with it some of the greatest sporting incidents that have ever been shown on the local screen as well as an excellent cast.

Mary Carr, the great mother in "Over the Hill," played the leading part with Violet Mersereau, Paul Willis, J. Barney Sherry, John Daly Murphy and others supporting. Again the "great mother" scored, but this time she was deprived of the use of her body and speech. A great opportunity for Mary Carr and a wonderful performance by her.

Paul H. Sloane, scenarist of "The Thief," "Tiger's Cub," "Over the Hill," "Beyond Price," and several other successful William Fox productions, adapted the story to the screen, while Richard Stanton, a widely-known Fox director, made the picture.

The truly remarkable scene showing young Tommy, on top of a board, riding a tempestuous rapids, was thrill number one. The second was the horse race. This race set the spectators applauding and shouting for victory.

St. Pete Has the Pep, Says Jim Hart After Visit There

"I've seen what makes St. Petersburg such a popular place for winter tourists to spend their time in Florida," said Jim Hart yesterday when he returned from the Sunshine City, where he attended the meeting of the commercial secretaries of the state. "It isn't the advantage of location, of climate or any other physical condition. It is the pep and push of the people. They are enthusiastic, optimistic, loyal to their home town and believe it is the best place on earth. At least they make one think so. The personal equation is nowhere more evidently potent for upbuilding a community than in St. Petersburg."

Mr. Hart described a meeting of the Rotary club, at which the secretaries were guests, and said that during the hour and a half session there was not a moment in which there wasn't something doing. Every progressive proposition was adopted unanimously, with a roar of ayes, and no one stopped to figure the cost, but pledged himself to pull off

Used Car Dealers Have Hard Finance Roads to Travel

Dealing in used cars, either directly purchasing them or taking them in on trade with the hope of reselling them is a precarious business, according to Mrs. Nell R. Varnes, local agent for Hudson and Essex cars. Mrs. Varnes said that a recent utterance of LeRoy W. Campbell, a New York banker, hit the nail squarely on the head. Mr. Campbell said:

"Thirty-one thousand automobile dealers went out of business with a loss of $233,000,000 last year because of the lack of careful figuring when allowing for old cars, lack of courage in trading and lack of selling ability. These figures to a bank act as a stop sign in considering its automobile accounts, and the lines of credit that will be extended to dealers will be predicated to a considerable extent on the basis of their selling policy, as it applies to the taking in of old cars in exchange for new.

"Unless the automobile dealers get together on some standard, uniform basis on the price of cars taken in trades, their credit with banks will always be handicapped."

PEACE IN CHICAGO IS IN SIGHT, SAY REPORTS Chicago, June 6.—Peace in Chicago's building trade situation was predicted today with reports that

FINANCIAL RESOURCES THE FINANCIAL RESOURCES OF A COMMUNITY ARE THE BAROMETER OF ITS PROSPERITY.

Add to these resources and you quicken its advancement. Detract and you proportionately obstruct its progress.

This should evidence to all of us our individual responsibility toward our home town and its people. These people are your friends and neighbors. YOUR INTERESTS ARE KINDED. Thus you should take no personal action in any community matter without taking into consideration just how it will affect all those living here.

You can safely bet, folks, that every Dollar you remove from the commercial and industrial life of PALATKA deprives just that much employment and vocation from someone who needs it. And when you remove employment and vocation, you will remove from our midst those individuals who are dependent upon it for the sustenance of their homes and families. THIS IS AN ABSOLUTE IRREFUTABLE FACT.

You may think we have enlarged upon this matter, folks, when we refer to your INDIVIDUAL ACTS as being so highly important to the welfare of PALATKA. To the contrary it should make plain the paths that are opened to all of us in extending the co-operation we owe this wonderful community.

To begin with when you need Merchandise or Service—BUY IT IN PALATKA. This simple procedure keeps your money at home, banks it here, pays the obligations of our people and thus finds itself on its way back into the channels of local commerce and trade—and even back into your own pocketbook whence it came.

Stop and think a moment, friends, of the transactions involved in a procedure of this kind. THINK OF THE EMPLOYMENT MADE POSSIBLE in the handling of these Dollars and the business transactions ensuing as a result of keeping them among ourselves.

In contrast, picture in your minds the result of spending or sending these Dollars away from our city. By so doing you have side-tracked in a single action, a substantial portion of our commercial industry and transferred to some distant community assets that are a DISTINCT LOSS TO PALATKA AND ITS PEOPLE.

We claim the keeping of our money at home, friends, is the first step in the building of a "real city." And from the standpoint of yourself—should be the easiest. To begin with, MERCHANDISE AND SERVICE IS HERE IN ABUNDANCE. There is not a business man in PALATKA today but who is ready to serve you to your utmost satisfaction both in quantity, quality and price.

BEFORE YOU TURN THIS PAGE we want you to glance through the list appended herewith and realize this is so. And they are only part of the entire number who are ready, not only to serve you, but also our community—PALATKA. Think it over.
